PLAYING LESSONS

Playing lessons emphasize course management and strategy—both in general terms as well as specific to the skill set of the individual.

The intent is for the professional to help you identify your strengths and weaknesses and develop a personal management strategy that will help you get the most out of your current skill set.

Some holes will be played out, others will not. Playing lessons give the professional an opportunity to design and prioritize a lesson program for your personal approach to lower scores.

Playing lessons are 30-90 minutes in length and are best scheduled for afternoons when course availability is expected.

Instruction Program

2019

Whether you are a beginner or an advanced golfer you can always benefit from golf instruction. But that instruction must be skilled, and it must be FUN!

From the very fundamentals to the subtle nuances of the swing, a trained and experienced professional can help simplify your swing, help improve your skills, and add to your enjoyment of the game.

The short game—putting, chipping, pitching; the full swing; specialty shots—bunker play, side-hill lies, shots out of odd places are all areas anyone can improve their game.

Instruction not only helps you with the mechanics of the swing but also the mental approach to the game, including course management and personal strategies to help you get the most out of your talent level.

Lesson times can be booked by any staff member in the Golf Shop, or by calling 272-1893.
